Special Announcements

Pre-conference Event in Vancouver, Canada

A new Pre-conference Event will be held in Vancouver, Canada, in November this year. Details can be found below.

The Whale

The much anticipated follow-up to Saving Luna is about to be released. The film is scheduled to open in Seattle on September 9 and in New York on September 16, with expansion into other theatres around the USA and Canada in the weeks after that. Please see: www.thewhalemovie.com

Private viewings will also be made at selected PCEs in Europe in October; contact mindinganimals@gmail.com for details.

Expressions of Interest for Minding Animals 3 in 2015

MAI would like to receive Expressions of Interest from institutions interested in hosting Minding Animals 3 in July 2015. If you are interested, please contact mindinganimals@gmail.com to receive a copy of the 2015 guidelines.

Minding Animals Pre-conference Events

20 to 21 September, 2011: Sydney, Australia

Host: Macquarie University Research Centre for Agency, Values and Ethics, and supported by the Animals and Society Working Group of the Centre for Research on Social Inclusion

Event title: Testing Times: a symposium on the ethics and epistemology of animal experimentation

Venue: MGSM Conference centre, Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia

Date: 20 to 21 September, 2011

Organisers and contact: Jane Johnson and Paul Taylor

Event language: English

Registration: free, but places are limited, so please book by sending an email to testingtimes.symposium@gmail.com

Symposium outline: Animal experimentation is a highly contentious practice. It generates ethical concerns due to harms to animals and epistemological worries because translations between animal experiments and human clinical medicine are problematic. In spite of these issues, the practice continues to expand. This symposium will bring together scientists, philosophers, sociologists, veterinarians and others to discuss animal experimentation and develop new approaches to the ethical and epistemological challenges it generates.

Animal studies is a new expanding field of research that brings together scholars from various disciplines. Social sciences emphasize how relationships between humans and animals vary over time and between cultural contexts, the appropriate distance and proximity between them being socially defined. Research in that domain is progressively developing in Switzerland, with results stemming from scholars associated with a variety of institutions. Minding Animals in Switzerland will provide an opportunity to present recent academic studies, to address policy issues and to contribute to the constitution of a research network. This one-day interdisciplinary conference is a Minding Animals Pre-conference Event and is open to researchers interested in Animal studies, to professionals dealing with animal issues and also to the general public.

27 to 28 October, 2011: London, UK (A Minding Animals Partner Event)

Host: School Fine Art, Sir John Cass Faculty of Art, Media & Design at London Metropolitan University

Conference language: English

The workshop portion of the event is part of a public outreach weekend of events including exhibitions screenings and performances. A final publication will also be developed with the international journal Antennae: Journal of Nature in Visual Culture.

This particular project of IF engages with the work and thinking of digital media artists whose work has been influenced by the growing wealth of knowledge on animal behaviour, cognition, creativity and consciousness emerging from such fields as ecology, cognitive ethology, psychology, neuroscience, cognitive science, philosophy, zoology and others. The workshop itself will offer in depth conversations and discussions between invited cognitive ethologists, biologists, psychologists, philosophers, artists and public policy makers whose work has helped to shift assumed conventions concerning animal cognition, consciousness, and agency, as well as reveal possibilities for the development of new media implementing image, text, sound and video. While there have been other symposiums and exhibitions in North America, the United Kingdom and Australia that have concentrated on human animal relationships, to now there has been no workshop or exhibition that has highlighted new methodologies for the development of new media artwork influenced by the growing wealth of knowledge about other species' perceptions of the world. This Minding Animals Pre-conference Event corrects that omission.

This workshop, coupled with the exhibitions, performances, screenings and international promotional activity and international publication, will target four specific audiences: members of local and international new media and art community of artists; communities of animal related scholars, scientists and public policy makers; audiences from the large contingents of the local and international public interested in animals, human-animal studies and animal advocacy and welfare; and, new media audiences interested in new developments in digital image, sound and text.

Within the broad theme of Animal Influence we find three sub-themes: Perception, Agency, and Consciousness/Compassion explored through invited presentations by cognitive ethologists, psychologists, theorists, animators, new media artists and animal studies researchers. The presenters are experts in their field, and have made significant contributions, nationally and internationally, to the area of investigation.

The two keynote speakers are well known and respected cognitive ethologist Marc Bekoff, and international new media artist Lisa Jevbratt, who will address aspects of these sub-themes. Twenty other members of the workshop will present and discuss these topics in depth from their particular perspectives.

26 to 30 November, 2011: New Delhi, India

Host: Wildlife Trust of India and IFAW

Event title: Buddhism and the New World Order: Compassion, Animal Welfare and Conservation

Venue: to be confirmed as part of the 2011 Global Buddhist Congregation

Speakers, Time and Date: to be confirmed on the Minding Animals website soon

Organiser and contact: Ashok Kumar (Vice-Chairman WTI), ashok@wti.org.in

2 December, 2011: Newcastle, UK

Host: University of Newcastle, UK

Event title: Animal Ethics and Sustainable Food Policy Conference

Venue: Baddiley-Clark Building, University of Newcastle, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, UK

Time and Date: 9am-5pm, 2 December, 2011

Organiser and Contact: Jan Deckers, jan.deckers@newcastle.ac.uk

Conference language: English

This conference will provide an opportunity to bring together the best scholars working on the intersections between animal ethics, sustainability, and food policy, and to develop further capacity and stimulate community action in this field. Scholars from different disciplines as well as those who adopt interdisciplinary perspectives are welcomed to submit extended abstracts insofar as they engage with the question of how governments should address the ethical issues raised by the consumption of animal products. To contextualise the problem, abstracts should address the following question: 'How should the UK Government regulate the consumption of animal products?'

This conference is needed to build capacity as well as consolidate existing scholarship and community action on the ethics and politics associated with the consumption of animal products. Internationally, the field of animal studies has gained impetus through the 'Minding Animals' conferences, the first of which was held at the University of Newcastle, in Australia in 2009, and the second of which will be held in 2012.

The planned Animal Ethics and Sustainable Food Policy Conference will serve as a pre-conference for Utrecht/Leusden, which will provide a further opportunity to explore the theme of animal ethics and sustainable food policy. The Newcastle Animal Ethics and Sustainable Food Policy Conference will provide an opportunity to address the question of how governments should regulate the consumption of animal products.

Whereas speakers are invited to focus on the UK with its distinctive social, economic, geographical, and climatological context, they should also consider how UK policies might differ from as well as inspire policies that might be adopted in other legal contexts.

The academic organising committee comprises Jan Deckers (conference chair, Institute of Health and Society, Newcastle University), Cristina Fernandez-Garcia (Institute of Health and Society, Newcastle University), Jonny Anomaly (University of North Carolina and Duke University) and Rod Bennison (CEO, Minding Animals International).

Abstracts:

Scholars who wish to present a paper are invited to submit abstracts of up to 1000 words (without counting the references section) in relation to the conference question. On the basis of these abstracts, the academic organising committee will select up to 6 speakers who will be invited to submit full length papers for presentation before the date of the conference.

Invited speakers will be able to benefit from receiving full financial support to pay for travel, subsistence, and accommodation expenses to participate in the conference (up to a generous maximum limit).

All abstracts must be submitted by email (in a Word attachment; without inclusion of personal details to allow for blind reviewing) to tanya.hutchison@ncl.ac.uk by the deadline of 31 August, mentioning 'NAES' in the subject heading.

The outcome of the review process will be communicated by 30 September. Reviewers will decide on which speakers to invite to present at the conference, and on a more extensive list of authors who will be invited to submit their abstracts for a Special Issue application that will be made by the conference chair to Food Policy (by the deadline of 15 October). In relation to the latter, please consider the guidelines for Special Issues at:

http://www.elsevier.com/wps/find/journaldescription.cws_home/30419/authorinstructions#19001

Registration:

Please register early to avoid disappointment as places are limited. To register, please complete the booking form at <http://forms.ncl.ac.uk/view.php?id=1993>

Participants are advised to make their own travel and accommodation arrangements. Options for accommodation include: Premier Inn Newcastle Central, Newbridge Street, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE1 8BS; Premier Inn Newcastle City Centre (Millennium Bridge) City Road, Quay Side, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE1 2AN; Royal Station Hotel, Neville Street, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE1 5DH; and Jurys Inn Newcastle, Scotswood Road, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE1 4AD.

The organising committee is grateful for the support provided by the following organisations: Beacon North East, Fuse, the Institute of Health and Society, Minding Animals International, and NIREs (Newcastle Institute for Research on Sustainability).

Cultural Animals

An afternoon symposium hosted by the New Zealand Centre for Human-Animal Studies, College of Arts,
University of Canterbury, Christchurch, New Zealand

A “Minding Animals International Pre-Conference Event”

Wednesday 21 September 2011, 1–5.30 pm: University of Canterbury, venue to be advised

This event is held to warmly welcome visiting NZCHAS Associate Dr Nik Taylor to our research centre. A renowned expert on the link between social violence and animal abuse, Dr Taylor will begin the symposium with a presentation on this important topic. This will be followed by a showcase of current research in the field of Human-Animal Studies undertaken in both the social sciences and humanities by members of NZCHAS.

Symposium Schedule:

1.00-2.00 Keynote/Public Lecture

Dr Nik Taylor (NZCHAS International Associate, Sociology, Flinders University, South Australia)

Topic: Addressing Animal Abuse: Reflections and Future Directions

2.00 Dr Nikki Evans (Social Work)

Ingenious or irresponsible: Animal-assisted therapy with offenders

2.30 Dr Piers Locke (Anthropology)

The work of conservation biology technicians in the Chitwan National Park

3.20 Professor Henrietta Mondry (Russian)

Ethnic she-dogs: Depicting anti-Jewish pogroms in Russian literature

3.50 Assoc Prof Philip Armstrong (English)

The rights of vegetables: Samuel Butler's theory of non-human agency

4.20 Dr Alison Loveridge (Sociology)

Farm children's understandings of animals

4.50 Assoc Prof Annie Potts (English and Cultural Studies)

Gallus graphicus: The chicken in contemporary and activist art

Keynote Presentation - Addressing Animal Abuse: Reflections and Future Directions Dr Nik Taylor, Flinders University, South Australia

Abstract: The last two decades have seen much research which suggests that human directed animal abuse is linked to human directed anti-social behaviour and aggression. This lecture offers an overview of the main research in this area, including the presenters own research (with Dr Signal from CQU) into different aspects of the human-animal violence continuum including, links between domestic violence and animal abuse; the role of empathy in human-animal abuse; willingness to report animal and human directed violence and differential responses to animal and child abuse. Following this is a brief look at the ‘other side’ of animal abuse, i.e. the arguments that connections to animals, through initiatives such as animal assisted therapy, can help remedy animal cruelty and other problematic human behaviour. The lecture concludes with a consideration of where animal abuse research can go from here by questioning whether simply treating animals as tools to end human directed abuse is ultimately self defeating.

ANTENNAE
The Journal of Nature in Visual Culture

The symposium proposes an exploration of artistic practices involved with animals, the interconnectedness with environments and environmental concern. In the recent re-surfacing of the animal in contemporary art, emphasis has been given to mammals, mainly because of the most immediate relational opportunities these offer to us. However, a number of very interesting artists has been recently trying to bridge the abyss between 'us' and more 'taxonomically remote' creatures through the use of art and science as active interfaces. This new challenge reveals the interconnectedness between humans, amphibians, reptiles, insects, and the environments which we all share. Through a multidisciplinary approach, the symposium aims at facilitating a dialogue between artists, scientists, students and academics interested in informing wider audiences through visual communication.

MINDING ANIMALS PRE-CONFERENCE 24th-25th October 2011

Animals & the Law

Hotel Campus – Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona – Cerdanyola del Vallès, Barcelona, Spain

Web page:

www.derechoanimal.info/eng/page/1625/minding-animals-pre-conference-event-animals-and-the-law

E-mail: animals-law@mondial-congress.com

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

The Minding Animals pre-conference lecture on “Animals and the Law” will be held in Barcelona on 24-25 October. The object of this first scientific meeting to be held in Barcelona is to focus our attention on the way the law treats animals under the two major legal systems: Common Law and Civil Law. We will try to take stock of the problems that have arisen and the responses evinced in this emerging field of knowledge.

Our aim is to ensure that the major questions posed in the field of animals and the law are tackled in an interdisciplinary manner that responds to the concerns of all of us in the academic world who work for animals, as well as those of the general public who are now showing a growing awareness of animal matters. This has been one of the objectives of the Barcelona Autonomous University research group ADS — the event organisers — from the outset.

I therefore cordially invite all colleagues and friends who wish to consolidate this initiative to participate in this congress with your papers and efforts.

I am most grateful to Minding Animals, the Animal Welfare Unit of the European Commission, the Spanish Ministry of Science and Research (R&D Project, DER-2010-310) and the B.A. University for the support they have given us right from the beginning.

Please feel confident you can count on my help and cooperation as well as that of the organising team.

I am most pleased to make you welcome and look forward to seeing you in Barcelona.

T.Giménez-Candela
President
